Touches of History represents a groundbreaking attempt to return to a study of “ May Fourth ” that is solidly grounded in historical fact. Favouring smaller stories over grand narratives, concentrating on unknown, marginal materials rather than familiar key documents, and highlighting “ May Fourth ” ’ s indebtedness to the cultural debates of the preceding late Qing period, Chen Pingyuan reconstructs part of the actual historical scenery, demonstrating the great variety of ideas expressed during those tumultuous decades.

Write Here is designed to teach students essential reading and writing skills, using media examples to help explain academic concepts and provide opportunities for practice. It is adaptable; because it covers the basics of reading, writing, and the modes of writing, it is appropriate to use in developmental composition classrooms. However, it also covers such topics as logical fallacies, rhetoric, timed writing, academic writing, source integration, and MLA/APA documentation, making it appropriate for a first-year or “ stretch ” composition course. Many beginning writing students are underprepared and feel that writing just “ isn ’ t for them. ” The authors hope to dispel that myth by using media examples and a conversational tone to introduce and teach the material. Write Here provides
